Contest: Participants were unaware of charges

However, things looked bad for the event when a state attorney general's office obtained a court order Tuesday afternoon, shutting down the benefit.

Later Tuesday, the restraining order was revised, allowing the singers to go on stage, but the funds are being held pending a ruling on the case.

The winners, Tom Haines, Mike Kohler and Gretchen Wildman were supposed to win cash prizes and airfare packages.

The funds, approximately $3,000 worth, are being held by G&B Select-a-Seat, Clark said.

Clark said Blossom had not made arrangements for distribution of the money through any known charitable organizations.

The contestants weren't aware of the court order or charges against Blossom's until later on, Lane said.

It was going to be a big opportunity for the contestants, and a way to help the community. Instead, it was terrible, she said.

AIDS: Young people are not invincible, but the disease is preventable; education helps the burning flame within every one to never get up.

Cole said she was hoping for more people but realized she was fighting the weather and the NCAA volleyball tournament in Beasley Coliseum.

Young people believe they are invincible, but a friend of Cole's who is infected is only 20 years old.

AIDS is preventable...

According to the World AIDS Day information booklet, AIDS is the sixth leading cause of death among people aged 15 to 24.

However, AIDS is the number one cause of death in 64 cities in the U.S., Martin said.

Approximately 18,500 children have lost their mothers to AIDS. By the year 2000 it is estimated that 80,000 children will lose their mother's to AIDS, Martin said.

She is targeting the high school age students to try and prevent the spread of AIDS through education.

Ely pointed out that high school students are not going to going to see their friends die of AIDS either...

The march is a memorial for the those who have died, an acknowledgment of those who have the disease, and to increase awareness for education and for prevention, Moser said.

The participants marched from Holland lawn down past the Administration Annex and Owen Library to Stadium Way, and then up Troy Lane past the Computer Science Building and ended at the CUB.

The group then lit candles in front of the CUB and shared words for those victims and those who will be victims of the AIDS epidemic.

There will be a cure someday...

Ruby Bailey Ronald

Ruby Bailey Ronald, an associate music professor at WSU, was killed in a single-car accident near Ellensburg, Wash., Nov. 27. She was 57 years old.

Born Aug. 17, 1936 in Peru, Ill., Ronald completed her primary education in the Peru School District. After graduating high school in 1954, she received a four-year scholarship at the Eastman School of Music where she received her bachelor's degree, specializing in piano.

Ronald started teaching at WSU in 1972, soon after receiving her master's degree in music from the university. In 1978 she was elevated to assistant professor. Ronald was promoted to associate professor in 1992, coordinating the instruction of keyboard, class piano and accompanying.

"She was always trying to find out what was behind the notes," Gerald Berthiaume, a friend and music faculty member, said. "She always worked with people who could help her find that. ...She was just a ball of fire."

She was instructing eight students at the time of her death.

Ronald performed with the Philadelphia String Quartet, the Cleveland and Seattle Symphonies and the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra. Ronald, a keyboardist for the Washington-Idaho Symphony, was preparing to join the Chelan Bach Fest on its 1994 European tour.

Ronald is survived by her husband, Robert Ronald, a member of the WSU chemistry faculty; two sons, Steven Bailey and Kevin Bailey of Seattle; a daughter, Liane C. Sawyer of Port Orchard, Wash.; a sister, June Nunn of Carlyle, Ill.; and three grandchildren.
