Police will tow away parked cars

More than 60,000 parking tickets were issued on campus last year, and that is too many, according to Del Brannan, campus police chief.

This school year, about 25 illegally parked cars have been towed away to deter the chronic illegal parkers. Brannan said any car with an "excessive number of tickets" against it will be put on an impound list.

Brannan said the impound policy started because he felt people should not be able to avoid paying and be able to park anywhere they wanted. He said one student told him he intended to pay for all the tickets he accumulated, but he did not like where he was supposed to park.

"I can see it (illegal parking) in an emergency situation or if a sign was missed," but he warned that more than two tickets a year, regardless of whether the tickets are paid, may cause that vehicle to be put on the impound list.

He said the department is going after cars with more than $50 of tickets against them, and once a car is on the list it will stay there the rest of the year.

"There are a few cars that seem to accumulate a large number of tickets and this seems to go on and on. They park at the same place, time and day of the week. It's obvious the parking tickets are being ignored," he said.

If a car is towed away, the driver is liable not only for the parking ticket, but for the towing charges as well.

Brannan emphasized the policy is not meant to generate more revenue, but to force compliance with the parking ordinances. He also said any car with a ticket about being towed should go to the police, and not to the towing company.

"It's not revenue, it's compliance we are worried about. The university is not designed to survive on parking ticket revenue."

"Lots of people complain about the parking problem, but no one seems to have a solution. I don't believe one exists that would make everybody happy. All you can do is try to make it the best for the majority," he said.

Brannan invited anyone who thinks he may have a solution to the problem to talk to him.

Streit-Perham voters narrow District 8 race in primary

ASWSU primary elections for district eight will be held today in the Streit-Perham lobby from 8 a.m. until 8 p.m.

"The rules require only three candidates times the number of positions open," ASWSU Election Board Chairman Chris Pursley said.

There are four candidates running for the district 8 position, and one must be eliminated before the general election March 21 and 22, he added.

The candidates contesting the position representing Regents and Streit-Perham are David Busko, Laurel Clare, Colleen Cooper and Grethe Martens.

Students must bring student identification cards in order to vote.

"It (the primary) is a luxury for people in these dorms," Pursley said. "It gives them an extra opportunity to choose and to make a more informed decision."

Mayfest makes agenda—again

A move to reconsider Mayfest speculation is on the agenda for tonight's ASWSU assembly meeting.

"Last year we gave the Mayfest Committee $5,000 to speculate, which means it's not guaranteed we'll get it back," said ASWSU Vice President Vann Snyder.

Some assembly members want the figure lowered to $2,000 said Snyder. "This could really limit Mayfest this year," he added. Last year Mayfest spent approximately $15,000.

The assembly also will vote whether or not to approve John Scott as the new Films Committee Chairman. "All chairmen are to be approved by the assembly, but few committees abide by this," Snyder said.

The men's and women's bowling teams are going to ask the assembly for money to send both teams to Nationals. This is the first year both teams have qualified.

There also will be a vote to place the budget guidelines in the bylaws.

Steps also are being taken to get the ASWSU organizational structure on paper, Snyder said.

The assembly meets at 6:30 in CUB 232.
