

Fair housing code debate to highlight council meeting

CITY—Discussion may get heated tonight when the City Council concludes its several-week debate over an amendment to the municipal fair housing code.

One feature of the amendment is to prohibit housing discrimination on the basis of sexual preference or orientation.

The affect of the amendment would be to put the city out of the business of enforcing its fair housing code.

The Pullman Fair Housing Commission will continue to exist as a mediator between tenants and landlords, but enforcement in discrimination cases will be turned over to the state Human Rights Commission.

Proponents argue civil rights should not have to be debated. Most of them, associated with the organized gay groups, argue persons either perceived as being homosexual or who are gay, need the law's protection.

Opponents, generally affiliated with one of the community's fundamentalist churches, argue the city would be approving of the "sin of sodomy."

New diabetes insulin pump treatment to be demonstrated

A recent development in the treatment of diabetes will be demonstrated today at 3 p.m. in College Hall 212.

WSU Student Diabetes Association and the Latah County Diabetes Association will be sponsoring the program on the latest model of an Auto Syringe Insulin Infusion Pump.

Keith Campbell, associate professor of Clinical Pharmacy, will be demonstrating the pump.

By using the pump and checking their own blood glucose with in almost normal limits diabetics can prevent the severe complications of diabetes.

All interested diabetics in the area are encouraged to attend.

Pullman man electrocuted, another injured

CITY—The son of two university employees was killed and another man suffered first, second and third degree burns Sunday while attempting to erect a television antenna.

Karl W. Bienz, 24, died Sunday night of electrocution at his residence north of Pullman. Bienz is the son of horticulture professor Darrell R. Bienz and architecture Librarian Technician III Betty J. Bienz.

The accident apparently occurred when Bienz and Raemon Lee Bohn, 25, also of Pullman, were attempting to install the antenna. Both men were standing on a metal roof holding the antenna when it came into contact with high voltage wires.

The incident is still under investigation by the Whitman County Sheriff's Office.

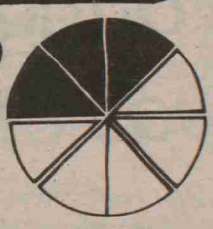

Bohn was admitted to the Memorial Hospital where he was listed in stable condition late Monday afternoon.

Funeral services for Bienz are being conducted by Kimball Funeral Home.

A revolt by troops supporting Gen. Franco broke out in Morocco in 1936 to herald the Spanish Civil War. Revolts in Cadiz, Seville, Malaga and Madrid also marked the beginning of three years of bloody fighting, after which Franco emerged as dictator of Spain.
