In a story titled "WSU students show holiday spirit, aid charities" in the Wednesday edition of The Daily Evergreen, Marian Hood's name was misspelled.

Boeing:

• Continued From Cover agreement, Johnson said earlier. District Lodge 751 represents about three-quarters of the more than 32,500 affected employees.

Strikers lost an average of $8,000 to $9,000 each, he said.

"You're going to make that up over the life of the agreement - it's a real win," Johnson said.

Other provisions include new protections against job losses from subcontracting and 100 percent company payment of all health insurance premiums until 1998 and possibly longer.

The 69-day walkout delayed delivery of nearly three dozen jetliners, forcing some airlines to cut service and rearrange schedules and cutting Boeing's revenue by hundreds of millions of dollars in the fourth quarter.

The amount of time needed to resume normal operations and catch up on deliveries remains undetermined, company spokesman Russ Young said.

Morale in the workplace will be a concern for both sides.

"I think we're all concerned about that," Young said. "We hope this offer goes a long way to addressing a lot of those concerns."

Finals Are Just Around the Corner,

The Daily Evergreen wishes you GOOD LUCK!
